

Noel Bright

Co-President of Television
The Tornante Company

Noel Bright is an Executive Producer of the Netflix original animated series BoJack Horseman. Bright is also the Co-President overseeing all television projects for Michael Eisner's Tornante Company, building it into a fully independent television and digital studio. At Tornante, Bright developed and Executive Produced the critically acclaimed drama series The Booth at the End and two seasons of Glenn Martin, DDS, the prime time animated series for MTV Networks. Bright began his career in television working in production on series for Bright/Kauffman/Crane Productions at Warner Bros. Television. Bright was a producer and production manager on the Emmy Award-winning television series Friends. He also worked as a producer and production manager on the television series Joey for NBC and the CBS Paramount series The Game for CW.